County Welcomes Deputy Attorney

Wasatch County has a new member of the law enforcement community. Derek P. Pullan, 27, has been hired as the new Deputy County Attorney. Pullan will assist County Attorney Dan Matthews in prosecuting offenders in Wasatch County courts.

Pullan is a 1993 graduate of the BYU Law School and former prosecutor with the Washington County Attorney's Office. He has also worked as a law clerk for Utah Supreme Court Justice Richard C. Howe.

Currently living in Pleasant

Grove, Pullan says he and his wife are hoping to move to Heber Valley as soon as possible. "I'm really looking forward to working here," says Pullan, who grew up vacationing in Wasatch County with his family. He adds he and his wife had been wanting to live in the Heber area for several years.

Pullan's wife, Laurisa, is a registered nurse at Utah Valley Regional Medical Center. She is also a graduate of BYU. The couple has two children, three-year-old Rachel and four-month-old Daniel.
